NEWS - 11/13/2016

- A major update! The list is now fully updated and reorganized!
- added Import duties/taxes, Scams, rules and a bunch of other smaller updates

Things we should change/ To Do:

1. Updates, sorting...

2. Shipping/Taxes/Import Duties (95% done)
3. Add a list of plushers who stream?

For easy browsing go to viewing mode (top right)

Now links will work normally.

You can also open document outline.

Plush List Filter

Too many artists to sort through? Need a way to search by your budget or the size you want? Try using the plush list filter!

Note: some of the prices are rounded to a nicer number, and some of the sizes are rounded or estimated. Contact the plush maker to get an actual size and price estimate.

Images

You are encouraged to use an image directly from the plushmaker's DeviantArt (i.e one that can be accessed by everyone - not one-off images uploaded to 4chan), preferably of a show pony (not an OC unless that OC is significantly well known - most people will be ordering show ponies anyway) and one that is sufficiently recent to show the artist's abilities.

Import duties, taxes and tariffs for complete n00bs

Plushie HS Code: 9503.00 (You will likely need this code if you speak to your customs office directly)

Almost all countries charge a tariff/duty and tax (these are two separate things!) on imported items. This is to encourage people to buy from the local economy and to stop money leaving the country. A tariff is paid, usually by the buyer and goes directly to the Government revenue collection authority. This happens to be very unfortunate especially considering that, if you are reading this, there is likely no one in your country who makes speciality plushies (so the tariff isn't really protecting anything), but it's something you should consider as it can easily push the final price you will pay way, way up.

Customs will hold your item ad infinitum until you pay to release it - make sure you have the cash available to pay duties when it arrives or you will never see your waifu!

Definitions

Tariff/Duty: These two words are pretty much interchangeable. This is calculated on Item price + Shipping.

Tax: This is usually your VAT (Value Added Tax) applicable in your country. For the UK, VAT is 20%. It varies depending on state in the US. It is added AFTER adding tariffs/duties (i.e include the duty you already paid in the VAT calculation).

Calculating:

The only foolproof way to do it is to contact the authority responsible for duties/customs, speak to an actual human being, explain your situation and get them to give you a concise breakdown of the duties and taxes they levy. However you are 90% likely to get it right by calculating yourself. The only way you won't is in the unlikely event that customs mis-classifies your item. If this happens it is confirmed that your local customs office is staffed by idiots.

Tariffs are almost always a percentage of the SHIPPED VALUE of the item. This includes shipping costs! (EXACT GUIDE COMING SOON™)

qtpony

Tariffs for Plushies for just about every country!

A note on Amazon and some couriers/Logistics services

Recently AmazonGlobal and some select courier services (DHL?) have started calculating your import duties and taxes before you place your order. You pay them directly for the item, shipping AND their estimate of what the import duty will be.

Amazon's policy has generally been to refund you the difference if their estimate was too high, and pay the excess/take the knock for you if they happened to mis-classify your item. The end result is that your item speeds through customs like a runaway bus as the company handles everything on your behalf. You don't even have to lift a finger.

Notes:

- Mane imitating real hair
- Guy has now embroidery machine so no more printed eyes
- For OCs, beware of wanting “real hair”--colors are fairly limited. (Especially pastels.) (?)
- Posable legs/wings
- For $1300 you can get lifesize plush from other artists(lowered the price but still high for what you get at semilife size)
- Buyer Beware- Badly photoshops for-sale and completed commissions, altering profiles and hiding seams
- Will do nsfw.
- Measures laying size based on hoof-to-tail, not hoof-to-hoof.

- <http://onlyfactory.com> (dead)
- Ebay
- Aliexpress, but it's kind of difficult to find them, and it's also worth noting, that from what i can tell, the content on aliexpress changes pretty often.
 - i usually limit my search to toys and hobbies, but that's up to you, but the information that follows assumes you do limit the search to that
 - searching 'my little pony' gives no results
 - 'rainbow pony' gives a decent amount, and using those results you can find some sellers that stock the 12 inch ponies
 - ditto for 'princess ponies'

- i think you get the picture
- another useful search term is 'ma baoli', which gives a lot more results than any of the others
- it's also worth searching by the name of the pony you are looking for, although it's not always reliable, stuff like queen chrysalis being referred to as queen rainbow
- another thing worth knowing is that some of the sellers don't display all of the pony varieties in their store, so you have to contact them one way or another, they will say if you need to do that, and sometimes how. you'll probably need to make an aliexpress account so you can contact them. you might be able to just email them, or give them your email so that they can email you pictures of the different ponies.

Notes:

- Constantly releases new ponies
- Shit legs shape
- Incredibly soft material
- Stitching doesn't match up for mouth / eye positioning, deformities such as one part stuffed more than another

AVOID

Funrise and shit from Walmart

Everything about this thing is wrong.

Scams

Some anons have alleged that scammers have taken their money and given them nothing to show for it. Plushmaking is obviously a very long, very complicated process with lots of moving parts. It is better to buy from a reputable vendor who is known to deliver (even if it takes ages) and can be vouched for by other anons. This is especially true for more expensive plushies such as lifesizes and undeniably the most important thing to consider if your order would involve complex international shipping.

This is a list of alleged scammers by anons.
